'Lay Quarrels Aside' Nixon Talks With De Gaulle

PARIS (AP) — Warmly welcomed by Charles de Gaulle, President Nixon talked privately for more than two hours with the French leader Friday, then joined him and 90 others for dinner at Elysee Palace.

The two presidents' discussions were described as frank and cordial. The White House press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, said Nixon "feels it was a good start," and a French spokesman reported "a good beginning."

The talks continue Saturday. On Sunday Nixon returns to Rome to see Pope Paul VI, and face possible new demonstrations. The Vatican has expressed concern about the possibility of embarrassment through new action by the crowds which on Thursday gave Rome its worst rioting in years.

Paris demonstrators against Nixon staged hit-and-run strikes all over the city Friday, breaking windows of American business firms and throwing eggs at the President's motorcade. At nightfall a small group attacked the offices of International Business Machines, broke four display windows and damaged a computer valued at $2 million.

There were cries of "Peace in Vietnam," and "Nixon Murderer."

In both Rome and Paris many demonstrators, mustered under the pageantry at a state welcome gave way to the informal-ty of a waving, hand-shaking, American chief of state before the talks began.

The crowds who welcomed Nixon to Paris were friendly, but the outpouring was far from massive. The Communist party had called for anti-Nixon demonstrations when he arrived and many citizens stayed away fearing violence, informants said.

A demonstration was held during Nixon's motor trip into the French capital. A group of young people crowded behind police barriers shouted anti-American slogans and scattered leaflets demanding an end to the Vietnam war. Police quickly broke up the demonstration and hauled off some of the demonstrators.

At another point along the route, youths shouted "U.S. assassin!" But the crowd was mainly friendly, and Nixon ordered his limousine stopped when he saw girls along the Champs Elysee twirling parasols of Stars and Stripes fabrics. To the dismay of his security guard, the President walked over and shook hands with the teen-age girls.

At the Arc de Triomphe, Nixon stood with eyes closed during a muffled roll of drums and placed a huge wreath of red, white and blue flowers at the memorial to France's unknown soldier. After the ceremony he mingled with the solemn crowd of Americans and Frenchmen. (Turn To Page Ten)

Sirhan Wants To Plead Guilty, Suffer Execution

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan arose dramatically in court Friday and said he wanted to plead guilty to murdering Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and be executed.

The defense finally opened its case after eight weeks of trial, with testimony about horrors the 24-year-old Jordanian saw as a boy in Jerusalem. As a witness discussed Sirhan's grades in junior and senior high schools in this country, the defendant became highly agitated.

After Sirhan arose, Superior Judge Herbert V. Walker sent the jury out and allowed Sirhan to speak.

"At this time I wish to withdraw my original plea of innocent and plead guilty on all counts," Sirhan said, standing stiffly erect at the defense table.

Q. Do you understand what pleading guilty means?

A. I do.

Q. What do you want to do about the penalties?

A. I will ask to be executed.

Q. Why do you wish to withdraw the plea?

A. I believe it is in my best interest. That is my prerogative.

"The court will not accept the plea," said the judge. "I give you to understand here and now the court will not put up with any more interruptions. You just sit down."

"I do not want to have this shoved down my throat," said Sirhan. The judge attempted to interrupt, and Sirhan said: "Let me finish, sir."

"I'll conduct the proceedings here," Walker replied, his voice rising sharply. "Sit down!" (Turn To Page Ten)

State Asks Guilty Verdict For Shaw

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Chief prosecutor James L. Alcock told a 12-man jury Friday the state had proved Clay Shaw "an absolute liar and absolutely guilty" of conspiring to murder President John F. Kennedy.

Alcock asked for a verdict of guilty against the 55-year-old Shaw, charged with criminal conspiracy. Conviction could mean one-to-20 years in prison for Shaw, who was arrested and charged exactly two years ago—March 1, 1967. Under Louisiana law, nine of the 12 jurors are sufficient for conviction or acquittal.

Final arguments began Friday afternoon as Judge Edward A. Haggerty Jr. of Criminal District Court denied the defense's second motion for a verdict of directed acquittal after the state finished its rebuttal.

Shaw, a 55-year-old retired New Orleans businessman, took the stand Thursday and swore he was innocent.

The 66th and last witness in the trial's 33rd day was a handwriting expert who said it was "highly probable" that Shaw signed the name Clay Bertrand in a guest register.

Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison, who showed up only a few other times in the courtroom, questioned the expert, Elizabeth McCarthy of Boston.

She testified that she had compared Shaw's signature with the signature "Clay Bertrand," which the state contends was Shaw's alias in conspiring with Lee Harvey Oswald and David W. Ferrie, both now dead. The Warren Commission said Oswald was the lone assassin and there was no credible evidence of conspiracy.

Garrison asked Mrs. McCarthy if she had reached a conclusion. She said, "Yes."

Q. Would you state your conclusion?

Hoover Blasts Court Guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover complained Friday of judicial guidelines "so vague and questionable" that they place a "heavy burden of judgment" on law enforcement officers.

"In crucial moments, this burden of judgment can create indecision," Hoover wrote in the monthly FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin. "And as we know, moments of indecision can cost an officer his life."

The FBI director cited no specific court decision, but said some judicial guidelines are so vague that "even the highest jurists disagree on their intent."

He has long been critical of some judicial decisions. Contending that policemen are put at a "definite disadvantage" by such guidelines, Hoover said an officer is the only one playing by the rules "in the criminal realm within which he must work."

In complying with all the procedural safeguards established for criminals, an officer must often subordinate his personal safety, his own rights and the rights of society to insure that he does not commit some error which might later result in the release of the guilty," he said.

At the same time, Hoover declared, "criminals are usually well aware of their legal rights and take full advantage of them."

The director also criticized law enforcement critics who, he said, "substitute paper theories for grim realities."

For example, he said advocates of restraints on arresting officers apparently base their position "on the premise that police are dealing with only law-abiding, cooperative citizens."

"While a big percent of police contacts are with responsible members of society," he asserted, "increasing assaults against and killing of law enforcement officers are indicative of the open contempt numerous violators have for police and authority of any kind."

Ike Threatened By Pneumonia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pneumonia posed a new threat Friday to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, weakening him and imposing fresh strain on his damaged heart as he fought to recover from high-risk abdominal surgery.

But a late-afternoon bulletin from Walter Reed Army Hospital said the 78-year-old general was resting comfortably and his heart condition had remained stable throughout the day.

A Pentagon announcement Friday morning disclosed that pneumonia had developed, and that Eisenhower had spent a restless night and was generally weaker.

He underwent emergency surgery for an intestinal obstruction Sunday night and up until late Thursday appeared to be making a remarkable recovery despite his age and history of seven heart attacks.

"General Eisenhower spent a restless night," the Pentagon said in an unusual departure from the practice of allowing the health bulletins to come from Walter Reed Army Hospital.

"He experienced some respiratory difficulty during the night which is due to pneumonia that has developed in the right lung base."

"It is too early to determine how he will respond to treatment... he is generally weaker this morning, but he is cooperative and determined to overcome this latest complication."

Pneumonia involves an accumulation of fluid in the lungs. It is not uncommon in hospital patients who are confined to bed for long periods of time. It is usually treated with antibiotics. In Eisenhower's case, it could pose a major threat. He is 78 years old. He has suffered seven heart attacks, has been confined to Walter Reed since last May 14 and he still is in the critical postoperative period following emergency surgery Sunday night to relieve an intestinal obstruction.

His doctors feel that the surgery might have saved the general's life by preventing the rupture of the intestine.

The advent of pneumonia followed four days of encouraging medical bulletins describing the former president's progress as "little short of remarkable."

He was sipping tea, conversing with his wife, Mamie, who is living in an adjacent suite, and even reading a little.

Monday Launch Set For Apollo

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Slowly overcoming their half-million-dollar colds, the three Apollo 9 astronauts are preparing for a Monday liftoff on a risky earth orbital mission rated as "the most complex thing we've ever launched."

"They're all doing better," said Dr. Charles A. Berry, chief astronaut physician, after examining a nose and throat examination of grounded pilots James A. McDivitt, David R. Scott and Russell L. Schweickart on Friday, the day their 10-day flight was to have begun.

McDivitt and Scott are Air Force colonels, Schweickart is a civilian.

Red-haired Schweickart, whose physical condition will be tested during a demanding two-hour space walk, was ordered to begin gargling with hot salt water to clear up his sore throat. All three pilots continued to take decongestants, antihistamines and vitamin C tablets.

Doctors planned to examine the trio again Saturday to decide if the crew is fit for a Monday launching. If not, a further delay would be called—probably until Wednesday, sources said.

Roman Senate Erupts In Brawl Over Riots

ROME (AP) — Anti-American riots swept Rome again Friday while President Nixon was still in the city. After he left for Paris, a discussion in the Senate of the rioting broke up in fist fights.

Hundreds of leftist demonstrators tried to march on the Palazzo Chigi while Nixon was conferring there with Premier Mariano Rumor. Police turned them back after a battle.

Meanwhile, demonstrations were breaking out all over the city, the main target being American businesses.

About 100 leftist youths smashed the windows of the American Express building with a barrage of rocks. Then they marched to Piazza di Spagna and burned U.S. flags.

A mob of several hundred demonstrators broke into the printing plant of the Rome Daily American, fought with about 40 employees, smashed equipment, and set fire to rolls of newsprint with incendiary bombs.

The employees, all Italians, fought with the demonstrators until police arrived and dispersed the mob. The fire was put out before it could spread to the rest of the plant, used for job printing and not for publication of the newspaper. Robert Cunningham, the American's general manager, estimated loss in damage to the newsprint and plant at $20,000.

In other parts of the city, small bands of youths moved out of throngs on sidewalks, threw stones and Molotov cocktails at police, then faded back into the crowds. Police nabbed three of the demonstrators. The trouble in the Senate began in a discussion of Thursday's rioting when Nixon arrived from Berlin.

In those disorders, a student was killed, 85 policemen and 34 demonstrators were injured and 199 arrested.

Portuguese Quake Panics Residents

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's severest earthquake in 60 years jolted the nation in predawn darkness Friday, panicking and scarring towns and causing two deaths and at least 61 injuries.

The tremor was spawned in the depths of the Atlantic Ocean and experts said this muffled its ominous intensity—measured here as 7.3 on the Richter Scale. It shook parts of North Africa and Spain as well.

The National Earthquake Information Center in Washington described the quake as one of the strongest recorded in the world since the Alaska quake of 1964. It measured the quake's highest intensity at 7.8-8.0 on the scale compared with 8.5 for Alaska.

Geological experts said that if the earthquake had not hit far out to sea—about 140 miles southwest of Lisbon—and far below the ocean floor, it could have unleashed a catastrophe.

As it was, Lisboners fled their homes by the hundreds. Granite statues, chimneys and balconies collapsed, crushing parked cars, and communications were turned into chaos.

A farmer was crushed to death when his stone house crumbled near the southern coastal town of Lagos.

In Barreiro across the Tagus River from Lisbon, a 64-year-old woman collapsed and died of a heart attack that police officials attributed to fright. A man died of a heart attack in Sevilla, Spain.

Two persons were seriously injured in Lisbon when they leaped from windows as the minute-long tremor rolled through this hilly city that was destroyed by an earthquake in 1755.

They were among five persons detained at Sao Jose Hospital for intense sea men. More than 50 others were treated for nonserious injuries and released.

Later 300 patients were evacuated from a wing of the damaged hospital.

Injuries were also reported in scattered places along the rocky southern coast that looks out toward Morocco across the funnel-shaped stretch of the Atlantic west of Gibraltar.

Buildings and old homesteads crumbled throughout the south, almost always without causing casualties.

In Lisbon families jumped into cars and drove toward open areas when the quake struck.

Enemy Divisions Invade S. Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Four North Vietnamese divisions have now crossed into South Vietnam from Cambodia, U.S. military analysts said Friday, but the enemy intentions are not clear.

There has been a two-day lull since the enemy launched an offensive Sunday, and this has perplexed allied commanders who are trying to figure out the next move by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

The four divisions, predominantly North Vietnamese but including Viet Cong veterans, are the 1st, 5th, 7th, and 9th, the U.S. sources said.

SAIGON is still considered to be the enemy's ultimate objective, and B52 bombers and artillery hammer approach routes to the capital.

U.S. analysts said there is no immediate threat to Saigon. They added there is no indication of increased enemy infiltration into the capital although enemy troops continue to move in small groups.

If an enemy division should suddenly shift toward the capital, it could be within striking distance in a couple of days. But it would have to avoid contact with thousands of allied troops patrolling the city's defense ring.

U.S. infantrymen screening the eastern approaches to Saigon clashed Friday with small bands of enemy soldiers apparently trying to filter into the capital from 10 miles away.

There was no new contact reported Friday with units of the enemy's 5th Division, which took a drubbing Wednesday in the biggest fight so far of the offensive on the outskirts of the Bien Hoa air base 15 miles northeast of Saigon.

Soldiers of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division, sweeping 12 miles north of Bien Hoa, killed 38 enemy soldiers Thursday while losing one killed and eight wounded.

Although the ground action has tapered off, the casualty count continued to climb.

Allied sources said more than 6,300 enemy soldiers have been killed since Sunday. Allied losses were given as 275 Americans killed and more than 500 South Vietnamese soldiers slain.

The estimated number of civilian refugees from the enemy offensive nearly doubled overnight to 21,903 Friday, the U.S. mission said. Officials had issued a preliminary report saying 12,734 had been made homeless. But they said new information caused the increased estimate.

State Income Tax Asked

CHICAGO (AP) — The Governor's Revenue Study Committee recommended Friday that a flat-rate state income tax be imposed and that the sales tax be continued.

The recommendation left open the amount of the income tax to be imposed, depending upon state needs.

The income tax on individuals and corporations would be applied to the federal tax base, with some modifications, and become effective Jan. 1, 1970. It would continue until the state constitution is amended to provide for such a tax.

The 28-member committee was appointed last August by Democratic Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro and continued its work upon request of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie after the administration changed in January.

The chairman is Simeon E. Leland, economist and retired dean of the College of Liberal Arts at Northwestern University.

The recommendations, to be sent to the governor, proposed continuation of the state sales tax and extension of the tax to certain commercial services. The committee's recommendations said, "The sales tax must continue to play a major role in the tax structure of the state."

It recommended that the sales tax be extended to cover all forms of commercial recreation, such as golf and country clubs, theaters, pool and bowling, including annual membership charges.

The tax also would be extended to such other areas as barber and beauty shops, printing and photographic services, dry cleaning and laundry, alterations, repairs, fabrication, installation and sewing.

The committee called attention to, without specific recommendation, other potential sources of revenue which would be made possible through extension of the sales tax.

These included application of sales tax to rental and leasing of personal property; taxation of private sales of motor vehicles, particularly sales of fleet vehicles and those of car rental firms; taxing real property contracts and contracts for real property repair.

The committee report, also without recommendation, suggested reconsideration of the sales tax exemption to goods sold to religious, charitable and educational institutions.

The committee's fund-raising recommendations were prefaced with a recommendation that "every opportunity to eliminate unnecessary public services or activities no longer required, or to increase the efficiency with which services may be performed, should be adopted whenever possible" by all state department and agencies.

It added that "every effort to improve the administration of present taxes should be made and, where possible, steps should be taken to assure their full and complete collection."

The committee said the legislature should seek a permanent solution to the state's revenue problems "rather than adopt temporary or stop-gap devices to get the state through one crisis while another develops."

It also recommended that a study of earmarking of state funds be undertaken by the legislature "with a view to reducing the number of funds so that more of the tax receipts go into the general fund and are appropriated out of it."

Among other recommendations were higher taxes on cigarettes and other tobacco products, liquor, wine and beer.

The committee recommended that inheritance tax laws be studied by a special committee and that these laws be strengthened and modernized.

Imposition of a gift tax as a supplement to the inheritance tax also be recommended. Illinois now has no gift tax and the absence of it brings about large gifts by living persons to avoid inheritance taxes upon recipients later, the committee pointed out.

Extension of the privilege tax imposed on foreign and alien insurance companies to domestic companies was recommended, along with a proposal that all tax avoidance loopholes in this area be closed.

A special study committee to revise insurance tax laws also was proposed.

Enemy Aims At Undermining Pacification Plan

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military analysts believe the aim of the current enemy offensive in South Vietnam is to draw the allies into defense of the cities, leaving the heart of the rural pacification program vulnerable.

These analysts say the offensive, launched over the past weekend, may last another month. On the basis of information collected from a variety of sources, the intelligence experts have concluded enemy commanders hope to shake up the South Vietnamese population and demonstrate that they can undo gains in pacification, thus showing the Paris peace negotiators their battlefield strength. In the view of intelligence experts, the enemy has undertaken a three-phase offensive which may last 34 days. The first phase, covering about five days, has included standoff shelling and rocketing of cities and towns, plus some ground probes.

In the second phase, expected to continue for ten or more days, the analysts expect enemy ground moves against Saigon and possibly other major population centers.

At the same time, these experts said, the enemy probably will attempt to exploit the pull-back of allied forces by hitting pacified rural areas.

The enemy probably will pause for a brief breathing spell, then launch as its third phase more thrusts at places where pacification has taken hold and the Viet Cong reportedly have lost ground.

U.S. officials acknowledge the enemy will make some gains but they contend the price will be too high and that the overall objective of undermining support for the Saigon government will fail.

Among other things, it is expected that the enemy will attempt to stimulate popular uprisings. But authorities say they are reasonably confident that, as in the Tet offensive last winter, no uprisings will occur.

Officials here estimate that about 79 per cent of South Vietnam's population is in what they call reasonably secure areas. If the enemy should reduce this by 10 per cent, it is felt he will have made significant impact.

Sources here say the brunt of the fighting is being borne by the North Vietnamese, but that they are trying to make it look as though it is mainly an operation of the Viet Cong.

There has been relatively little offensive activity in the rice growing delta where the Viet Cong, rather than the North Vietnamese, are dominant.

Military men would like to see some selective bombing of North Vietnam in retaliation for the offensive, which they regard as a blatant violation of understandings under which the United States halted all air strikes in the North last Oct. 31.

But they indicate they have slight hope that President Nixon will pick this course of action. They say they do not yet know how he will respond to the offensive.

Classic Red Tactic Be It Vietnam Or West Berlin

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Russia's Leonid Brezhnev is using in West Berlin a tactic that proved very effective in the Vietnam war.

The Viet Cong time and again terror-struck a hamlet, withdraw, then come back and repeat the performance to convince farmers their government has neither the will nor the strength to protect them.

This was one objective of the 1968 Tet offensives on Saigon, Hue and other major cities and province capitals.

These tactics also aim at convincing Americans the war can never be won, no matter how many military victories we win. In West Berlin the intermittent blockades and harassment have similar objectives:

—To convince the West Germans that the Americans, French and British will not come to their aid, that they stand naked and alone in any crunch.

—To tire Americans of the struggle for a half city. It is certain Kremlin and West European officials are watching closely President Nixon's reactions to these moves, as they watched President Johnson's reaction—or lack of reaction—to Czechoslovakia.

The time and nature of the next Soviet-East German moves will depend in part on how the Kremlin strategists interpret the President's next steps.

The Russians have a wide variety of choices. They do not need to harass U.S. movements to West Berlin—thus stirring up a hornet's nest. They could, more effectively as their next step, suggest that the West Germans were shipping to Berlin materials used in that city to manufacture war equipment in violation of four-power agreements. This could require a detailed check on all shipments into West Berlin, inspections that might slow cargo enough to threaten the city's economy.

Some among the administration's advisers believe the long-run Soviet purpose is to convince the West Germans that they, like the French, should loosen their ties with the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance, build stronger connections with Moscow, take Russian suggestions on foreign policy, trade and armaments.

One Russo-European specialist in the government calls this an attempt at the "Finlandization" of West Germany. Because of Soviet pressure, the Finns have gradually changed their external and internal policies so as to conform more closely with Russian desires. They have acceded to Russian suggestions on the make-up of their government. They are now under Russian pressure to tie their economy more closely to that of the Soviet Union. Among West Germans considerable concern already exists about how far the United States is willing to go to back them up.

Numbers of West Germans are disturbed by the extent of the U.S. commitment in Vietnam, Thailand, Okinawa, Japan and Formosa, by the weak U.S. reaction to Czechoslovakia and by the deterioration in France's relations with the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance.

It Is Up To You!

In cooperation with the Board of Education and the Citizens' Advisory Committee we have endeavored during the last four weeks to present detailed information regarding all aspects of the proposed $4.25 million bond issue which will be submitted to the voters of School District 117 Saturday, March 1st.

The day of decision is now at hand. The voters will decide whether our schools are to expand to meet the needs of today or whether they will have to limp along with inadequate, overcrowded conditions.

The case in support of the bond issue has been thoroughly presented.

The great need for positive action has been clearly demonstrated. The plans for a new elementary school and a new junior high school have been carefully thought out, as have the proposals to improve Jonathan Turner and the High School. The cost is considerable but not excessive. No unnecessary frills are involved.

As we have said before, we believe that the bond issue should be passed. It is urgently needed to finance an essential school building program.

We urge every qualified citizen to go to the school polls Saturday, March 1st, and vote YES for the bond issue.

Legal Knots In Student Revolts

A large body of what lawyers call "case law" is being written in the area of campus unrest. More and more students who have been disciplined for taking part in campus demonstrations are going to court, claiming violations of their constitutional rights, and more decisions are being handed down.

One of the most recent is that of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in Cincinnati, which confirmed the right of a school to regulate the conduct of its students and to expel students for violating those regulations.

The ruling, which upheld the decision of the federal court in Nashville, said in effect that the constitutional right of free speech of three students expelled from Tennessee A. & I. State University was not a license for activities designed to promote unrest and disrupt normal educational activities.

However, courts have not been of one mind in dealing with student demonstrators, says Commerce Clearing House, which has made an analysis of decisions in this area.

A state-supported school just can't throw out a troublesome student and have done with him, a Missouri court held. In today's world, suspension and expulsion are often more severe and lasting penalties than a fine or a few days in jail. Thus schools are expected to comply with certain standards of fair play, including giving the accused an impartial hearing, making a written statement of the charges against him and permitting him to cross-examine his accuser.

Nor could a school use a rule banning "misconduct" as the only excuse for expelling disruptive members of the student activist group who tried to prevent a chemical company recruiter from conducting interviews, said a U.S. District Court in Wisconsin.

But a school can expel students for using four-letter words, a California court ruled. And blocking the entrance to a building to prevent lawful access to it by others is not a legitimate exercise of free speech, said a federal court in Denver.

As for the disciplinary powers of private schools, a federal court in New York threw out a case brought by demonstrators on the ground that the government could not interfere with the internal affairs of a private institution.

So far, no case has gone as high as the Supreme Court, but it is likely that one will have to before a final determination on the rights of students, and of schools, is made.

Communication

To the Editor:

As a person who still has an interest in the community, I think that the persons who are in opposition to the upcoming school bond issue are selling their community and, most of all, themselves a bit short. James Garfield once said:

"Next in importance to freedom and justice is popular education, without which neither justice nor freedom can be permanently maintained."

This sums up my belief of education, and I do not think that there is any person of rational thought who could justifiably deny it.

This request for money that the School Board is asking for should not be denied to the students and the community that will benefit from these new physical facilities. I would like to ask the people who oppose this bond issue if they have no faith in the professional educators who helped plan these proposals for alleviating the acute problems of space in the schools and in the Board of Education that you gave your trust in with the process of election.

Is the factor of money enough to obscure the necessity for a quality education? As members of the community, whether you have children or not, you will benefit from the education of these students. They need the best facilities that are possible.

It has been said that in the past fifty years man's knowledge has doubled and in the next fifty years it will more than double again. A community can only keep abreast with the times with educated aware people who are not apathetic to the needs of the community, but who understand the needs of the community. An apathetic person is not thinking, and a person who does not think is stagnant. I do not think that Jacksonville is a stagnant community, therefore get out and vote for the bond issue and keep a good quality of education in Jacksonville.

Sincerely,

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, MARCH 1—Born today, you have an unusually charming way with children and are able to guide them in any direction you choose simply by talking quietly. Indeed, in a life that will probably know all too much friction in other directions, you will no doubt find your chief solace in your relationships with the young. Children will provide your best audience, be the source of your most compassionate sympathy, and in general prove to be your greatest admirers.

Quiet amiability marks your nature—but you also have a very strong streak of independence which keeps you from doing anything against your own principles simple to gain peace. It may cost you precious friends to cling to your own ideals—but cling to them you will, regardless. Quite willing to allow others to live their lives as they see fit, you expect—even demand—the same right for yourself.

If you are wise, you will make every effort to keep the friction that is bound to enter into your public life from having any part in your personal, private one. The best way you can do this, of course, is to select a mate who believes as you do, whose values are the same as yours. Opposites attract, it is true, but you shouldn't let it go any further.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Sunday, March 2
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Meet others halfway today in an effort to get together on a matter of principle. Your helping hand will be returned in kind.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—Trust the truth of another's story. You may ultimately be disappointed—but you risk losing a friendship otherwise.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Duty comes first. Don't allow yourself to be talked out of complying with your responsibilities for the sake of pleasures.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Talk over your plans for a major purchase with another. You may discover that there are other ways of accomplishing the same ends.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Carry out the normal chores of a routine Sunday. Morning worship should be entered into fully for spiritual succor.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Meet minor upset with good cheer and you can transform this into one of your best days of the month. Expect the unexpected.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—Accept the crowding of your time—so long as you don't have to push yourself into nervous tension. Children have much to say.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)—Take counsel with yourself. You can be your own best adviser if you take into consideration your inclination to be hesitant.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Extend the hand of hospitality to all who come to your door today. Friends can be made of enemies at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Dig into your own past and you will come up with answers to children's problems. Don't consider yourself past understanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Allow your spiritual nature to take over as you consider your future. You may be in a rut of materialism.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—A day which could easily see you entering into public life with a vengeance. Make sure you know where you're going.

evening, sports, swim and rain wear, and Easter outfits will be included.

Narrator will be Mrs. Neil Carrico with Mrs. Lawrence Thien at the organ providing the music. Special entertainment will be dance numbers by Pam and Deb Willey and guitar music by Charles Steinacher and Larry Wade of The Country Gentlemen.

Drawings for door prizes and a dessert bar serving home-made desserts, punch and coffee will follow the parade of fashions.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the Catholic Daughters, participating clothing stores, Jeffrey Gift Shop or at the door.

sources, and local taxes. As the new buildings will not be in operation for two years, and as there will be changes in the tax base, the state aid distribution formula and in other income sources during this period, the extent of any necessary increases in the educational tax rate cannot be determined at this time.

Q. Why did the Board of Education force people to give options on land when there was other land offered to them at a lower price to the taxpayers which could have been used for the school buildings?

A. The Board of Education has conducted exhaustive site acquisition studies over the past seven months. There were no other suitable sites available at lower net cost to the district than those selected for the new elementary school and the new junior high school when such cost factors as acquisition of water and sewer utilities, site development, location, and related items were taken into consideration along with purchase of the land itself.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market made a valiant attempt to rally Friday, but skepticism took over late in the day and muddled the trend.

The Dow Jones industrial average wound up with a gain of 2.18 at 905.21, but that was only part of the story.

Enjoying a margin of about 200 more plusses than minuses in mid-session, the market weakened and closed with 689 issues lower and 628 higher of the 1,577 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

There were 75 new lows for 1968-69 and one new high, Brunswick, which rose 1 1/4 to 21. Although selective strength among some of its 30 blue chip components lifted the Dow in the latter part of the session, a verdict of a lower market. This is how they read:

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, down 3 at 337.5, with industrials up 1.3, rails off 1.2, and utilities off .5.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks, down 1 cent at 355.19.

The market had a lot more courage at the start than at the end. At its best, the market had a margin of more than 200 gainers over losers. This melted away as the session wore on, and the usual reason of pre-weekend caution was given.

Some of the high-flying conglomerates were hit hard by news that Robert Haack, president of the New York Stock Exchange, had issued a statement that the Big Board was considering the delisting of two companies in this category.

"Everybody's trying to figure out which of the two firms the Big Board is thinking of delisting," said one broker.

The statement created considerable uncertainty.

One of the go-go stocks, Glenview, rose to the top of the most-active list, dropping 1/4 to 14 1/4 on 234,900 shares as the trading element weighed the pros and cons of Haack's statement.

None of the 15 most-active stocks fell, and 6 rose.

Gulf & Western was another of the same type, losing 1 1/2 in heavy trading.

The mood of caution was reflected by the drop in volume to 9 million shares from 9.67 million Thursday.

A solid rise by Big Three motors faltered in late trading. Ford and Chrysler held small gains, but General Motors ended with a loss of 1/4.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange erased an early gain and ended lower on balance. Volume was 4.1 million shares, compared with 3.88 million on Thursday.

GRAIN, BEAN PRICES DROP 1 1/2c TO 3c

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain futures prices declined from 1 to 3 1/4 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade this week.

There were several factors that influenced the liquidation. The principal influence on the decline was a lack of incentive to hold long positions early in the week. On the last trading day, traders had to disclose intentions if they planned to accept March contracts or if they planned to tender against the contract.

Corn tenders numbered 3 million bushels, wheat 4.1 million and soybeans 6.385 million bushels. Corn tenders were about what the trade had expected, but wheat and soybeans tenders were higher and, as a result, selling was heavy against the March contract.

When trade closed for the week, wheat futures were 1/2 to 3/4 cents a bushel lower than a week ago, March 1.28; corn was 1/4 to 1/2 lower, March 1.14 1/2; oats were 1/4 to 3/4 lower, March .69 1/2; rye was 3/4 lower, March 1.15 1/2; and soybeans were 2 cents lower to 1 cent higher, March 2.61 1/2.

The market had a lot more courage at the start than at the end. At its best, the market had a margin of more than 200 gainers over losers. This melted away as the session wore on, and the usual reason of pre-weekend caution was given.

IN MEMORIAM: GRANDPA

Exodus 20:1-17
Deuteronomy 6:4-9
Matthew 5:11-16
Matthew 5:17-20
Matthew 5:21-26
Matthew 5:27-32
Matthew 5:33-37

They sent all the way to Boston for that special piece of glass. Look closely, and you may see it in the east front window. From inside you can read the inscription: "In Memoriam . . ." and then his name.

Grandpa called himself "a retired handy-man." But in those days lumber was cheap and labor wasn't. So when they said "we can't afford to build a church," Grandpa disagreed.

"Get me the boards and a few strong fellows to set the beams. I'll build your church," said Grandpa!

Before he finished, there were fifty men and lots of dollars to help him. You can see why they sent all the way to Boston for a piece of glass.

Grandpa is gone. Yet the Christian who is eager to put his faith into action is still able to share God's blessings with hundreds of his neighbors . . . and posterity as well!

GOMER GETS POINTERS

"When I had to learn something about soldiering for my role in 'Gomer Pyle—USMC,' Frank Sutton gave me a lot of pointers, and so did Don Knotts," says Jim Nabors, star of the Friday night comedy series on the CBS Television Network. Sutton, who plays Sergeant Carter in the show, served with the Army in the South Pacific during World War II. Knotts, an old friend of Nabors, was a Marine Corps drill instructor.

GREW UP WITH MEDIUM

Greg Garrison, producer-director of "The Dean Martin Show," knows and loves his business. He understands the medium because he grew up with it, starting as a janitor at a Philadelphia TV station in 1947. He became a cameraman and director that same year and at the age of 22 was signed to direct "The Show of Shows" starring Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca.

Over the years Garrison has directed shows of Kate Smith, Milton Berle, Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly, Jack Benny, Dean Martin, Danny Kaye, Phil Silvers and presently "The Dean Martin Show" colorcast Thursdays on Channel 20 and other NBC channels 9-10 p.m.

Arte Johnson's brother, Coslough, is one of the writers for NBC's "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In."

Carol Burnett Harvard Club's Woman Of Year

The Hasty Pudding Theatricals (the Hasty Pudding Club) of Harvard University has named Carol Burnett, star of "The Carol Burnett Show" on the CBS Television Network, as its 19th annual "Woman of the Year." She is the first television star to receive the award.

Miss Burnett flew to Boston from the West Coast Feb. 23 to attend the award ceremonies on the following day at the Hasty Pudding Clubhouse. She returned immediately to Hollywood to resume taping on her television series.

The award read: "The Hasty Pudding Theatricals has long held womanhood and acting ability in high esteem, and it is honored to present this award in recognition of great acting skill and femininity."

Last year's winner of the award was Angela Lansbury, then starring on Broadway in the musical "Mame." Previous winners include Shirley MacLaine, Katharine Hepburn, Jane Fonda, Joanne Woodward, Ethel Merman, Rosalind Russell and Gertrude Lawrence.

Joan Makes It Big

Everyday Situations Provide TV Routines

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — On a recent weekday morning, New York housewives resisting nagging thoughts about making the beds sat down with a second cup of coffee to watch a nervous blonde—so nervous she was walking pigeon-toed—come onto their television sets and announce that they were about to learn how to make their homes safe from burglars.

At that point, the blonde clutched her hand-mike even harder and launched into a stand-up comedy monologue on the subject of thieves—

"A burglar broke into my place once but he left right away: The place was so messy he thought somebody else got there first."

That was a typical start of an effective little hybrid program called "That Show," and the frantic performer was, of course, Joan Rivers. And before the 30 minutes had zipped by, housewives in New York, and family audiences at all hours in 36 other population centers across the nation had, indeed, learned several ways to make their homes, if not burglar-proof, at least burglar-resistant. Along the way, they also enjoyed a few laughs.

Miss Rivers, whose star has risen in the past four years, is the only woman comic to make it really big since the success of Carol Burnett and Phyllis Diller.

The suggestion, however, that Joan arrived as a freshly minted funnywoman from the suburban Westchester community about which she built her first comedy routines brings nothing but hollow, husky laughter from the performer.

Now in her early 30s, Joan has been struggling in her furious way for 12 or more years—playing the Catskill resorts on one-night stands, hammering out routines in scrubby little nightclubs, working as an office temporary by day and performing—anywhere there was an audience—by night.

She got some good enough bookings at nightclubs to be summoned in 1961 by Jack Paar for the old "Tonight Show," but nothing much happened.

Ironically, that show became the springboard for her current success. In 1965, Johnny Carson had her on, loved her brand of comedy and so did the audience.

Now Joan's syndicated television series has been renewed for a second year and her list of outlets is growing constantly.

Her style is drawing comedy from everyday situations that afflict the average person. And since she always depicts herself as the perennial loser in life, the audience goes right along with her.

"I just don't think that people in the audience like to think that performers are any different off stage than they are on," she reflected. "I think they like to think of me in a mess of a kitchen with everything boiling over and burning."

The sessions are video-taped for later use.

Here is what I learned by returning to high school:

Today's students are surprisingly well-informed on the film industry's new G-M-R-X classification of movies according to moral content.

Seeing a sexy movie has no particular effect on the relations of a boy and a girl on a date.

Films can bridge the generation gap.

The latter was illustrated by one boy who said that he saw "The Graduate" with his parents. The film concerns a college graduate who is seduced by his girl friend's mother.

"After we saw 'The Graduate,' my folks and I went home and had a long talk about morals," the boy said. "It was the first time we had been able to communicate on that level. I enjoyed the talk."

On the other hand, another boy said he and his father saw "The Graduate" separately. "My dad thought it was trash," the student reported.

Many parents seem to feel that "The Graduate" is stacked against their side of the well-known gap, since it shows Dustin Hoffman as a young man who is given everything but attention and understanding by his status-conscious parents. The film must have struck a responsive chord with today's youth; most of those in the seminars had seen it.

How do girls feel about going on dates to films that feature sex and nudity?

"It depends on who your date is," answered one attractive girl. "If it's a boy you know and like, it makes no difference. You can discuss the picture afterward with him, and it's no big deal. Seeing nude bodies doesn't mean anything, you can do that in art museums."

The students seemed unimpressed by the rash of new films concerning homosexuality and lesbianism. One girl commented: "I can't see why stars like Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton appear in pictures like that. Don't they care what their fans think?"

As Go Hems, So Goes Finance

By KAROL STONGER
NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street denizens who made headlines last fall by casting their eyes at abundant bosoms might fare better in the market by lowering their sights to the hemline.

There are no figures—not even the 43-25-37 measurements of Francine Gottfried—that correlate the ups and downs of the stock market with the bouncy 21-year-old brunette who caused crowds to swell to unwieldy proportions.

There are, however, indicators that as the hemline fluctuates between ankle and thigh, so goes the stock market from low to high.

This strange phenomenon is nothing new. But Ann Galvin, an executive at Anchor Corp., has documented what people have speculated on for two decades—a cause and effect relationship between fashion and finance.

Miss Galvin, a vice president said that since the turn of the century dress has reflected the dollar—or vice versa. When the economy was tight women tended to "crawl into a shell," hide their limbs. Prosperity, on the other hand, paralleled ease and abandon, with women kicking up their heels and their hemlines.

In 1900 hems hugged the floor while people hovered near poverty as a result of a major stock market recession in the late 1890s. But by 1913, pre-war prosperity put the market on the rise and women revealed their ankles. Six years later hems dropped to their previous low and the position recession set in.

The Roaring Twenties brought inflation, high living and a lot of leg. Speculative fortunes were being made in the market on paper margin. Women were enjoying new-found economic, political and sexual freedom. Their skirts hit a new high-mid-knee and higher.

The "handkerchief" hemline, high in front and low in back, forecast financial doom early in 1929, and by October of that year the Big Crash was heralded by the plummeting hemline. Ten years passed. Then a gradual hem hike reflected hope for a return to prosperity. By 1945 war and inflation drove skirts to 17 inches from the floor.

Christian Dior's "New Look" of 1947 dropped the hemline to 12 inches in preparation for a peacetime recession. The market and dropping hemlines recovered with the beginning of a new decade and American involvement in Korea.

By 1958 hemlines were back up to mid-knee and at the start of the '60s skirts soared to new

MONTVALE, N.J. (AP) —

What do teen-agers think about today's sex-charged movies?

It is helpful for a film reporter to learn grass-roots opinions, as I did during two days of talks and seminars with seniors of Pascack Valley and Pascack Hill high schools. This was part of a pilot program financed by New Jersey and the federal government to bring speakers on various problems to the schools.

- Schools are overcrowded — critically so at the elementary and junior high levels! There has been no school building program over a period of pupil enrollment growth since 1956. (The 1965 vocational arts building only replaced inadequate and outmoded facilities at the high school level.) Total pupil enrollment has grown by 1,214 during these past twelve years, and it will increase.
- The specter of attendance-in-shifts for first and second grades is facing us right now. A child's beginning education is the most formative stage. The proposed program will relieve enrollment pressures at all levels in all schools of District Number 117 — kindergarten through high school.
- Construction costs will be greater if we delay. If the bond issue should not pass and the program is delayed, the cost of building the schools and having the necessary remodeling work will increase at a cost of about 7 to 10 per cent a year.
- The costs of education have increased much less than the cost-of-living. We must meet this need for new schools now!

Crewman's Tale Stirs Bucher To Tears

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — The USS Pueblo's skipper began sobbing convulsively Friday and had to be led from the hearing room after a 20-year-old Mexican-American said "faith in God and my country and the decisions of my commanding officer" brought him through North Korean torture.

Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher began crying softly midway in the testimony of Storekeeper 3.C. Ramon Rosales, who told of being tortured because he was thought a South Korean spy.

When the court asked the routine question—"what do you think was the main thing that got you through the 11 months?"—and Rosales answered, Bucher's head sagged to the table he was sitting at and he began crying uncontrollably.

"He'll be all right," his attorney, E. Miles Harvey, said later. "He just needs to be away from here for a while and I've gotten him away."

Rosales, of El Paso, Tex., gave a gently told story of his captivity. He told about practicing religion "behind our beds" because his captors forbade it; about hours of torture and of suffering meningitis with pain so severe he couldn't turn over in bed.

Rosales described a day of unspeakable horror when North Koreans first boarded the Pueblo last year. They eyed his black hair, high cheekbones and oriental cast of his dark eyes and beat him mercilessly, Rosales said, while he pleaded: "I am an American!"

Once, during an indoctrination lecture, Rosales said, "they told us there was no God. I stood up and said there was a God."

"He said, 'Did you ever see Him?'"

"I told him I see Him every day in the flowers, in the trees, that God is life. He got shook up when I said that."

92ND BIRTHDAY FOR OSTEOPATH AT JERSEYVILLE

JERSEYVILLE — Dr. S. W. Downey, Jerseyville osteopath, marked his ninety-second birthday anniversary Feb. 21st, and in observance of the occasion he entertained a group of relatives at a dinner at the Blackhawk in Jacksonville.

Guests included Dr. Downey's only living brother, F. A. Downey, and Mrs. Downey of Jerseyville and his nieces and nephews.

Despite his advanced age Dr. Downey still maintains offices in the Masonic Building. He has not practiced his profession for several weeks while recuperating from an illness.

In addition to activities in Masonic work, Dr. Downey is widely known for his work with the DeMolay boys organization in Jerseyville. He received gifts at the dinner and presented gifts in return to all the guests.

Musical Protest Sets Playful Tone At U. Of C.

CHICAGO (AP) — The spirit of fun replaced the tension of trouble on the University of Chicago campus Friday.

A group of about 300 members of a moderate faction held a rally in the sunshine near the Administration Building. Then they proceeded to the Quadrangle Club, private club of professors and administrators, picking up a trombone player, a bugler and a drummer en route.

Taking their script from the Old Testament, they marched around the club seven times. A ram's horn sounded at the completion of each circuit.

Then they gathered at the steps of the club. The band played and the marchers sang "Joshua fit the battle of Jericho."

They chanted "amnesty" for student demonstrators who have been suspended or face expulsion. But, as they passed the dining room in the Reynolds Club, they switched to "lunch now, amnesty later."

The rally and march came at a time when it was apparent that student dissidents had split into moderate and militant factions in a student body that has been splintered by ideas on what should be done to give the students more power.

Students who demanded an equal voice with professors in the hiring and firing of faculty members occupied the Administration Building for 15 days. But they emerged Feb. 14 with their demands unmet.

A Switch In Color CAPE TOWN (AP) — Miss Vivian Joan Poggenpoel's engagement faced only one big hurdle. She was officially classified as Colored (mulatto) and her fiancé was listed as White in segregated South Africa.

The Race Classification Board rejected her appeal although it recognized that she had studied at a Whites-only college, attended Whites-only movies and since childhood had mixed only with Whites. The board declared that she had to be Colored since her grandfather registered her as Colored on a census form when she was 5 years old.

It looked like the wedding was off until the Supreme Court overruled the board and said Miss Poggenpoel, 22, could be a White after all.

Irish Elections Fan Tempers

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — "The Irish," said Samuel Beckett, "are a fair people. They never speak well of each other."

Last week the 900,000 voters of Northern Ireland were justifying the sage's comment. The words have been flying as only the Irish can fling them.

The showdown comes Monday in voting for a new House of Commons for Ulster. It is likely to determine whether the area settles down to civic peace or embarks on another riotous course of political and religious feuding.

This is certainly the strangest and, in some ways, the first real election in Northern Ireland, where the Protestant-based Unionist party has ruled 48 years without a break.

Prime Minister Terence O'Neill, after a lifetime in politics and six years as premier, is facing a personal election battle for the first time.

All previous Northern Ireland elections were a simple head count. Protestants voted for the pro-British Unionist government and Catholics against it.

This time 45 of the 52 Commons seats are being contested, almost twice the usual number. Candidates total 119 under 14 party labels.

The upsurge in interest stems directly from a split in the Unionist party, which itself reflects a split in the Protestant two-thirds of the 1½ million population.

Northern Ireland's feuds between Protestant and Catholic go back for centuries. Now, for the first time, the Protestants are feuding among themselves. The immediate issue is the personality and policies of Prime Minister O'Neill, a moderate dedicated to bringing Protestant and Catholic together. The deeper issue is the fears of many Protestants that Roman Catholics eventually will outnumber them, and that Protestant jobs will be in danger in a country chronically short of work.

Pressures on O'Neill came to the surface last fall after civil rights demonstrations in Londonderry. Catholics there claim that for generations they have suffered discrimination in jobs and housing from the city government, run by Protestants.

The government in London, which retains a supervisory role in Northern Ireland affairs, began pressing for reform. O'Neill went some way to meeting the British demands, but in doing so alienated at least 15 of his party's 37 members of Parliament. The Unionist split is the only issue before the voter. No other party, including the Catholic-based Nationalists, can hope to form a government.

O'Neill 54, is fighting his personal battle for a place in Parliament from Bannside, the County Antrim district which he has represented, previously unopposed, for 23 years.

This time he has two opponents who typify extremes of Northern Ireland politics. The Rev. Ian Paisley, 42, is leader of the Free Presbyterian Church; his main campaign slogan is "No Popery." Michael Farrell, 24, is a college teacher and a leader of Catholic-based civil rights campaigners.

In Londonderry's Foyle district, where a Protestant could win few votes, the Catholics are battling among themselves.

Eddy McAteer, leader of the Nationalists, is opposed by two top activists of the civil rights campaign—Eamonn McCann, standing for the Labor party, and John Hume, campaigning as an independent.

Pregnant School Girls Get Education

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The pregnant junior and senior school girl doesn't have to be a dropout any longer. Special, segregated classes in neighborhood stores keep her education going right through childbirth.

She gets her English, math and science, along with infant care, and birth control instruction, if requested.

Pioneering projects began over a year ago as the Philadelphia School Board cooperated with the city Health Department. Now there are six classes and more planned, taking care of 220 girls, all unwed.

They are a tiny fraction of the 3,000 Philadelphia girls, 17 and under, who give birth annually—but many are married and uninterested in staying in school.

Gratz High School, where the student body is 99 per cent Negro, joined with neighborhood volunteers 15 months ago to set up a class in a vacant store.

"I think it has been a phenomenal success," says Charles Smith, the teacher in charge. "Five girls were graduated with their classmates last June."

"It's a crime for schools to give up on a girl just because she's become pregnant," says Smith. "A mistake doesn't mean her life should be ruined. She should have the same opportunity as other girls."

"A pregnant girl becomes more receptive to education because she is much more mature and serious."

And the girls? "It's comforting to be with girls who have the same problem," says one 15-year-old. Another, 16: "I wouldn't go to school at all if there wasn't somebody there just like me."

John C. Odle Dead In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon released Friday the names of two Illinois servicemen who were killed in Vietnam fighting.

They were: Marine Pfc. John C. Odle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon L. Odle, 912 N. Jefferson; Litchfield; and Army Sgt. Robert M. Lee, son of Eva E. Mittemeyer, 535 N. Lynch Ave., Chicago, who previously was listed as missing.

LUTHERAN WOMEN GIVE TO HEART FUND IN CHAPIN

CHAPIN — The Mary and Martha Circle of St. Paul's Lutheran church of rural Chapin met Thursday, February 27, in the church basement with Mrs. Gary Boehs presiding. Twenty-six members were present.

A hymn was sung accompanied by Mrs. Louis Werries. Due to the absence of Rev. Donald Kroll, Mrs. Wendell Middendorf gave the devotion and led the topic, "Mission Beyond Ourselves."

It was voted to give $5 to the Heart Fund. A thank-you note was read from the Carl Tie-mann family. Members were urged to attend the Christian Growth Institute to be held April 15 and 16 at Hotel Nicholas in Springfield.

Visitors to the shut-ins were Mrs. Warren Lakamp and Mrs. Lloyd Schone.

The meeting closed with a hymn and the Lord's Prayer. Hostesses were Mrs. Arlo Schumacher, Mrs. Rachel Long and Mrs. Esther Nienheiser. Entertainment was arranged by Mrs. William Nienheiser, Mrs. Gary Boehs and Mrs. Lloyd Schone.

Mrs. Walter Uhnken and Oren Jacob Russwinkel were guests.

GOLDWATER'S SON BECOMES CANDIDATE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barry M. Goldwater Jr., eldest son of Arizona's U.S. senator, announced Friday his candidacy for the congressional post vacated by California's new lieutenant governor.

The 30-year-old Republican conceded his father's name influenced his decision to run but added, "I'd like to leave him out of this as much as possible. This is my campaign, not his."

Young Goldwater, a stockbroker, may face as many as 15 opponents in the April 1 primary election for the post formerly held by Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke.

Hold On! No Tax Breaks Expected Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Nixon administration economic advisers said Friday that general tax reductions and an end to the 10 per cent surtax are not likely soon.

They also cast doubt on chances for early approval of plans to share federal tax revenue with states on any large-scale basis.

Robert P. Mayo, director of the budget, and Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy joined other Nixon appointees—all from Illinois—in a meeting with reporters in the office of Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.

The economy cannot absorb a tax cut at this time, Kennedy said, indicating he did not see much chance for general tax relief until inflation is curbed and the Vietnam war ended.

But he said he disagreed with the prediction of Joseph W. Barr, Treasury undersecretary under former President Lyndon B. Johnson, that a wholesale, nationwide taxpayers' revolt can be expected if taxes are not eased.

The Treasury Department is receiving thousands of letters from persons concerned about tax inequities, Kennedy reported. But he said his opinion is that a tax rebellion will not occur.

Gasoline Price Will Up Between 1 And 3 Cents

NEW YORK (AP) — Motorists across the nation will pay one to three cents more for a gallon of gasoline as a result of near industry wide price hikes this week at the wholesale level.

Eight oil companies raised the prices their dealers pay by either six or seven-tenths of a cent per gallon. The man at the pump plans to pass the increase on to the man behind the wheel.

Two major companies with no price change thus far were Humble Oil and Shell Oil.

An Associated Press survey in six major cities showed many dealers who have not increased their prices were planning to do so.

In Boston, one Gulf dealer said, "Business is lousy this time of year, and this just makes it foulier."

He plans to raise the price of premium by three cents.

In Detroit, the Retail Gasoline Dealers of Michigan, representing 2,000 service stations, says drivers there will be paying one to two cents more a gallon, up from 35.9 cents for regular and 39.9 for premium.

George Currie, a Gulf dealer in San Francisco, plans to stand pat at 33.9 cents a gallon and to "wait and see."

Frank M. Anderson, a large Texaco dealer on a bus thoroughfare in Atlanta, raised the price of regular and premium one cent a gallon Thursday and planned another one cent increase Saturday.

Anderson complained of the wholesale price increase by Texaco.

It was Texaco who started the tail rolling Monday by announcing a six-tenths of a cent increase to its dealers.

Family Consent Of Transplants Under Review

CHICAGO (AP) — A Virginia pathologist said Thursday it may become necessary to authorize organ transplants from dead persons over the objections of their survivors in order to save the lives of persons critically ill.

However, others participating with him in symposiums at the American Academy of Forensic Sciences argued that consent of next of kin should be required.

The Virginian, Dr. Geoffrey T. Mann, said, "We are going to have to educate the public to overcome the unrealistic veneration of the dead in this country."

Mann, chief medical examiner for the Commonwealth of Virginia and a professor at the University of Virginia medical school, said consideration for the living rather than the dead should be paramount when medical authorities are deciding whether to make a transplant.

Mann acknowledged that it is rare for families of the dead to refuse permission for transplants when the importance is explained to them.

Blair Sadler, a Washington lawyer who has done research for the National Institute of Health on heart transplant problems, maintained that consent is necessary for organ transplants.

Sadler said that ideally the state perhaps should be empowered to use tissue and organs from the dead at will, but that public opinion at this time will not accept such a view.

Dr. Donald Browning, a University of Chicago theologian, took a similar stand.

Air Pollution Tracing System Being Developed

By WARD MARCHANT

Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) —

Like detectives using fingerprints to track down a criminal, scientists may soon be able to use "isotopic fingerprints" to trace the sources of air pollution.

A scientific team at the University of Utah, led by Dr. Mead L. Jensen, director of the university's laboratory of isotope geology, has developed such a technique.

Jensen says tests are under way in the Salt Lake Valley and results are expected by early summer.

The tests in the Salt Lake area work like this: detection stations at selected locations monitor weather conditions around the clock. This gives the researchers an idea of the direction from which pollutants come.

The pollutants are taken from air filters and from precipitation gathered at the station and examined by instruments which weigh the isotopes in the polluted air.

Isotopes are the species of elements and differ slightly in weight. For instance, the element carbon has a number of isotopes, all of which vary slightly in weight.

And, says Jensen, each source of smog—swamp gases, industrial plants, cars and others—emits pollutants of a characteristic isotopic composition which can be measured.

"For example," Jensen said, "the sulphur dioxide emitted from the smelterstack of an industrial plant has a different isotopic makeup than the sulphur dioxide released by decaying organic matter in a swamp."

By matching the "isotopic fingerprints" from the sources and the samples obtained at the detection stations, Jensen says his research team can determine the percentage of pollution each source contributes.

In New York, the Brookhaven National Laboratory is attempting to determine the source of sulphur dioxide in Manhattan.

Sirhan

"I'm sorry, sir," Sirhan said. "I'll not accept you."

The judge said "any further interruptions by you will result in your being restrained," saying he was prepared to order a face mask to keep Sirhan silent and straps to keep him in his chair.

"I do not want this shoved down my throat," said Sirhan, adding that he would act as his own attorney and was dismissing his three defense lawyers, all volunteers.

The judge refused to permit him to fire his defenders. Back in court after a recess Sirhan's chief counsel, Grant B. Cooper, said he had conferred with the defendant and he feels "definitely and unequivocally he does not want us to continue."

"None of us," Cooper said, "has any desire to represent any client who does not want our services... We have prepared a legitimate defense, we feel, of diminished responsibility."

This type of defense holds that the defendant lacks the mental capacity to fully premeditate murder within the meaning of the law.

Before he arose to interrupt the proceedings, Sirhan listened with a small smile as a playmate from his Arab childhood described him as miserably poor but honest, a sensitive boy beset by the horrors of Middle East warring.

"Sirhan was a very sensitive human being," Ziah Hashimeh testified of his boyhood chum, now on trial for his life in the June 5, 1968, assassination of Kennedy.

The state rested its case near the end of the eighth week of Sirhan's first degree murder trial.

Hashimeh, 25, was one of the early defense witnesses. His testimony sketched a background of war and poverty in old Jerusalem. The defense says this atmosphere scarred Sirhan's personality and, partly as a result, he was incapable of premeditating Kennedy's slaying.

Judge Walker adjourned court until Monday.

Nixon

He grasped the hand of one French woman and told her: "We hope we can develop policies for peace and for the future so that we no longer will have this kind of ceremony."

Nixon was to meet with a dissident ally on his visit here, but there was a friendly tone in De Gaulle's welcoming speech which wound up with the phrase, "Long live the United States of America!"

It was cold and windy when the President arrived from Rome, but De Gaulle was coatless. Nixon had his blue overcoat aboard the airplane, but left it there.

The 78-year-old French leader greeted Nixon with a handshake and a smiling word of greeting. Then they walked along 300 feet of red carpet to the Salon d'Honneur for their speeches, made without notes.

De Gaulle spoke in French of 200 years of friendship between the two nations. He said Nixon had come "so that we can state precisely our thoughts and our intentions on the subject of world affairs and so that you can enlighten us on your own views and projects."

Nixon paid tribute to France as America's oldest ally and friend.

"I come here at the conclusion of my European journey with the purpose of underlining our dedication to that relationship," he said, "for the purpose of finding those areas in which we can continue work together for the future."

Nixon said he looked forward to hearing De Gaulle's judgment and counsel "on the great problems that divide the world, and your judgment as to how the United States can best play its role in helping to solve those problems."

Nixon said that now, as never before, the need is not for unilateral decisions by one great power, but for the best wisdom that can be found to set "policies that will save freedom and maintain peace."

He recalled the words of Benjamin Franklin: "Every man has two homes: France and his own." De Gaulle smiled broadly.

Haw Ma Gets White Meat

By BETTY CANARY

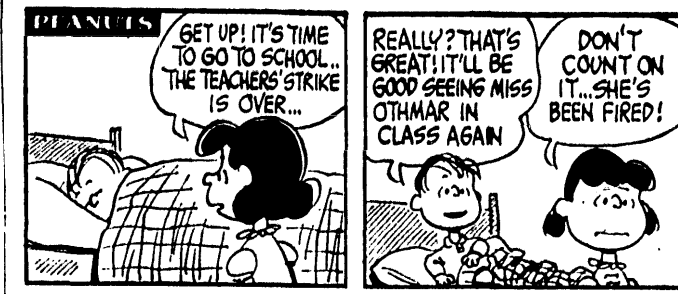

Recently we had friends in for dinner and what started out as a family-style meal turned into a Teach the Children session. It started with Ralph saying, "When I was a kid we ate last. The table was cleared and we were called for a second setting."

"I wouldn't mind that," his son remarked.

The adults ignored him. "Ha-ha-ha!" Ralph sputtered. (This is his usual signal and we knew reminiscence-time was upon us.) "I always say I was born in the age when kids got the chicken wings and the adults got the white meat and when I had kids, the rules were changed so the parents got the dark meat!"

The children ignored him. The adults ignored him, too because the truth is that

PEANUTS®

Ralph is always saying this. At this point, however, all adults present joined together in order to treat the children to fascinating tales of working cents an hour and how grandpa went to work for the railroad at the age of 13 (sunup to sundown) and how the kids didn't know how good they had it.

After awhile (I think it was when Ralph told the story about his Uncle Dan having to quit school in the fourth grade) one of the children indicated his state of boredom by yawning. He was reprimanded for this show of ill manners but frankly I thought it not so much ill-mannered as ill-timed. I never yawn until Ralph gets to his sad story about his walking to school through three feet of snow—every day and with cardboard in his shoes, too.

What I never tell them is that I always got the white meat of the chicken at home because I was the baby of the family. Because, you see, they know I have to eat the white meat now. Unfortunately, mysteriously, SOMEHOW, I tell them, horror stories about what my parents suffered during the Depression is going to get to them. Surely, I can't take that away from them.

Sweater Sewn In Jacket Kept Children Warmer

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—To help them face the cold winters when my children were young I used to sew an old wool sweater inside each of their winter jackets. Instead of having to put on two separate garments when they went out, the kids slipped on this one warmer, comfortable coat over their inside clothes. I used their old sweaters that might have been repaired or mended, removed the buttons and sewed together around the lining seam. More practical to put away and keep clean, too. —THERESE

DEAR POLLY—First I would like to tell M.D. to put a drop of machine oil on the stiff joints of her pinkie shears and they will work more loosely. For her second problem of marks on the kitchen floor left by chrome chairs, I suggest that she paint them with colorless nail polish after cleaning off the dirt. Little plastic and rubber caps also can be bought for such chair legs and they keep the floor clean and free from chair scratches.

When wearing heavy elastic stockings I found that they would pull my girdle down. I solved this by adding two more garters to make six instead of four and my stockings and girdle both stay "put."

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Search Continues

For ALS Treatment

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Q—In one of your columns, you mentioned a pancreatic enzyme for the treatment of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. How effective is it?

A—This treatment has not justified the hopes placed in it. The search for an effective treatment continues.

Q—How does amyotrophic lateral sclerosis differ from multiple sclerosis?

A—ALS usually has its onset in persons in their 40s and 50s and is steadily progressive. MS starts in the 20s and 30s and progresses slowly, often with periods of remission. ALS is characterized by weakness, with marked wasting away of the involved muscles, fine tremors in small muscles and exaggerated knee jerks and related reflexes, while MS is characterized by numbness as well as weakness, no wasting of muscles and coarse intention tremors seen only when a coordinated movement, such as raising a cup to the lips, is attempted. The cause of both diseases is unknown and as yet there is no cure for either.

Q—In your column on Bell's palsy, you said it could be caused by a tumor. Where would the tumor be? I have had repeated attacks. How can I prevent further recurrences?

A—For a tumor to cause facial paralysis it would have to be in the region of the facial nerve. For the recurring type of this disease, you should avoid exposure of your face to wind and cold and avoid crowds during the season when respiratory infections are prevalent.

Q—In a recent column you mentioned a pain killer that didn't contain any aspirin. What is the name of it?

A—There are many such drugs. The following are not habit forming: acetaminophen, acetaminophen, anti-pyrene, aminopyrine, dipyrone, oxyphenbutazone and phenylbutazone. Frequently two or more of these are combined in a single preparation. Another drug, propoxyphene (Darvon) is very popular but none of the drugs mentioned should be taken without careful medical supervision because of possible harmful side effects.

Q—In an elderly person could a two-day loss of consciousness be caused by hardening of the arteries or high blood pressure when no heart disease is evident?

A—Yes. The two diseases may affect the brain without affecting the heart.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Religion Today

By JOHN GALE

Associated Press Writer

COPENHAGEN (AP)

Nearly 19 years ago, an enterprising Danish village priest got started in the travel business by organizing a coach trip to Spain for his war-weary parishioners. The trip lost money. So the priest organized a second international excursion to break even.

That was the start of a multimillion dollar globe-trotting concern as a fleet of 17 aircraft, many of them pure jet, which carry Scandinavian sunshine-seekers to 30 widely scattered resorts. The tourists are set down in high-class hotels of which four—two in Spain, one in Austria and one in the Canary Islands—are totally owned by Pastor Krogager's interests.

The priest aims unapologetically to run a business which not only makes money but attracts the greatest possible custom by providing services at rock bottom prices.

Along the way, Pastor Krogager has become a millionaire.

"I am a kroner millionaire many times over and also a dollar millionaire," he said in an interview.

"I don't say the money is unimportant. It is very interesting to be a millionaire. But we are not drinking all the money up. My wife, Gorma, and I continue to live as ordinary clergy people."

They live as they have for more than a quarter of a century in the tiny parish of Tjaerborg a few kilometers inland from the thriving West Jutland port of Esbjerg. Their home is a 10-room vicarage, a converted farm house, with a lucky horseshoe over the front door and crocuses blooming in the courtyard.

Across the fields lies a tiny white-washed church, one of the two in which Pastor Krogager preaches.

At 59, he is lean and dashing in appearance.

"Of course, he said, "we started in the travel business 1,000 years ago when the Vikings went plundering. In those days, we used to kill off the hostellers. But since we started again in 1950, certain operational changes have been necessary."

More seriously, he added: "This travel thing is an immensely interesting thing to be doing. It's a business and we are not sentimental about it. But we are glad to be able to conduct good business with something which is in many ways a public service because of its cheapness."

"For me, it will always be a sideline and my main work remains in this parish which I first came to 36 years ago."

The tranquility of the vicarage contrasts sharply with the buzz of activity in the highly computerized travel office headquarters a mile along the road. Here more than 100 girls handle

Clutter Triumphs In Decorating Competition

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

In a competition judged by women known for their good taste, clutter seems to have triumphed over the kind of decorating that achieves stark drama with the irreducible minimum in home furnishings.

Seventeen homes were selected on the basis of taste, imagination and the "artful selection of problems." A cozy cocoon-wrapped style that expresses an owner's personality predominated in the choices made in the first annual awards program of Burlington House—the home furnishings division of Burlington Industries.

The categories for entrants included collectors, young couples, career girls, retired people and island, city, regional homes and those used for summer weekends. Judges selected winners from photographs.

In some instances, furnishings took their cues from surroundings. The color scheme in a rustic weekend summer home living area in Big Horn, Wyo., was taken from the Navajo rug—red, gray, black, white—on the floor. Sofa and chairs are red or white monk's cloth, calico curtains are red and yellow.

One Tennessee home evidenced nostalgia in choice of floor covering for a kitchen—John Benson of Hendersonville used sidewalk bricks taken from the city street in Nashville where he had lived as a boy.

Laborers of love included a string canopy on a tested bed made by Kathryn Hays of Roxbury, Conn. Another innovation shown in her bedroom is a headboard collage of clock parts, hands and wheels.

The eclectic look in one home included Mexican furnishings and andirons made from the original newel posts of the old reconstructed house. In another home, the living room included furnishings of white iron, Queen Anne mahogany, wicker, flame stitched and sisal rugs, and striped, floral and solid-patterned fabrics. In the Dallas home of Mrs. J. O. Lambert a collection of beautiful objects filled a coffee table made from old Egyptian doors.

Furnishings ranged from priceless porcelains to throw-away cardboard chairs in children's rooms.

Some rooms contained ingenious touches. A Memphis career girl turned an old-fashioned icebox into a bar and wine cellar. In Los Angeles a couple set a jagged fireplace into a massive rock wall.

Homes were entered in the contest by individuals, local papers, magazines. Among the well-known judges were Mrs. Harcourt Amory and Mrs. Deniston Slater of New York, Mrs. Deane F. Johnson and Mrs.

the bookkeeping and telephone reservations, while their work is recorded by U.S.-manufactured electronic equipment. Other offices are scattered throughout Scandinavia and the priest's organization today employs more than 1,000 persons in various categories.

Ronald Reagan of Los Angeles, Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke of Washington, D.C., Mrs. Nicholas R. duPont of Centerville, Del., and Mrs. Lewis Cabot of Boston, Mass.

Mounts Leads Jacks In Fourth Quarter

By BUFORD GREEN Sports Editor

Duane Mounts' hot fourth quarter allowed Jacksonville to hold off hot-shooting Gary Flamini and the Southeast Spartans for a 76-71 Capitol Conference victory at the JHS Bowl Friday evening, as the Crimson closed out a 15-8 regular season.

Mounts hit three buckets to stave off the rallying Southeast club after JHS had dropped a nine-point spread late in the third quarter, with Flamini, a quick 5-8 guard, putting on a brilliant 35-point show in the losing effort.

Plains then stalled and played Routt even the remainder of the contest.

The Cardinals took their biggest lead of the game up to that time when 6-1 forward Rich Grant hit a five-footer to put the winners up 57-51 with 6:39 left in the game. Routt came back with a pair of free throws before the Plainsmen put on their winning burst.

Pleasant Plains hit a field goal and Grant tipped in a rebound with 5:35 left to go ahead 61-54. Guard Larry Theilen then scored on a lay-up after which Routt Center Ken Cors collected his fourth penalty by fouling Grant, who hit his charity toss. With 3:45 to go Theilen put Plains ahead 66-54 with a 15-footer.

Raiders Stave Off Pittsfield For 71-66 Count

PITTSFIELD — Quincy Christian Brothers High school held off a stubborn Pittsfield team Friday and pulled away late in the last period to win its fifteenth game of the season, 71-66.

CBC jumped out to a 9-0 lead but Pittsfield came back in the second quarter to tie the game 22 all and go ahead by two. CBC then reeled off 12 straight points and held the lead the rest of the way.

Pittsfield came within two points several times in the final period but lost the services of 6-4 forward John Ruzich with four minutes to go on fouls. CBC then moved ahead by seven for the remainder of the contest.

Steve Jenkins took scoring honors with 21 points for the Raiders, playing with a cold only parts of every quarter. Center Bob Greiving and guard George Scholz each collected 20 to pace Christian Brothers.

Pittsfield slips to 16-7 on the season while CBC has seven losses.

Ashland, now 22-6 for the year, will now advance to the Havana Regional to take on the host club at 8:30 Tuesday evening.

The eventual winners led most of the way in the tight, cold-shooting contest, taking a 42-35 margin into the closing eight minutes before Easton put on a last ditch rally and deadlocked the game.

Gridders Want Coach Ousted

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — University of Maryland football players are out for Coach Bob Ward's scalp and have signed a petition saying they will not report for spring practice April 8 if Ward still is coach.

The chief topic of conversation on the university campus Thursday was the coaching position, and normally talkative players refused to discuss the matter.

The first public indication of the smoldering wave of resentment arose Wednesday when a group of players met with Jim Kehoe, newly-appointed athletic director.

Kehoe planned to meet with players Monday.

Ward, who just returned from Long Island, said "I really don't know anything about the situation."

There have evidently been problems since Ward arrived on the coaching scene two years ago.

Last Quarter Surge Wins For Cardinals

By DENNIS RIEKEN

Pleasant Plains High school hit 11 out of 15 from the field and outscored Routt 12-1 in the final quarter to come from behind and win the last game for both teams in the regular season, 75-62, Friday night at the Routt gymnasium.

After trailing most of the first half, Pleasant Plains fought back to take a 49-47 lead at the end of the third period. The Plainsmen maintained their two-point lead through the first minute of the last quarter and then broke loose to outscore the Rockets 15-5 in the next five minutes, taking a 68-56 lead with 2:00 showing.

The game was a battle of JHS beating or failing to the South-east press for the most part.

The Cardinals had trouble in the Spartans' press in the first and fourth periods and were outscored in both frames. In the second and third rounds JHS zipped through the defense for several easy shots and outscored Southeast 47-35 in the two frames for the final difference.

Elsewhere, it was a struggle between Southeast's hot shooting and the Cardinals' domination of the boards. The Southeast, starting with a 70 percent first period, outshot the eventual winners 52 percent to 41 percent, but were outscored 35-25, 17-5 offensively.

After leading by nine points late in the third quarter, JHS took a 57-51 margin into the final eight minutes. After Flamini and Mounts, who finished with an outstanding 29-point production, swapped two buckets apiece to start the frame, Southeast made its move.

With the Cardinals running through the Southeast press regularly in the third frame, JHS broke from a 39-39 tie behind Mounts and Brummett for a 55-46 lead with one minute left.

Four starters finished in double figures behind Mounts, while Scott had 14 and Keys 13 to follow Flamini for the losers, who outscored Jacksonville by a bucket from the field but hit only 15 of 22 free shots to JHS's 22 of 26.

Brad Keys

Keys Finds Chicken His Newest Delight

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Chicken has replaced football in Brady Keys' heart, which shouldn't surprise his mother.

Twenty-two years ago—long before Keys became an All-Pro cornerback for the Pittsburgh Steelers—he developed this capacious passion for doughnuts. Doughnuts in the morning. Doughnuts at night. His whole world revolved around the hole in the middle.

Keys' mother, however, finally tired of his appetite. "If a boy likes doughnuts so much, he should learn to fix them himself," she said.

So it was, then, that nine-year-old Brady Keys, Jr., became the youngest chef in Austin, Tex. "I'd fix up two or three dozen and eat them all," he says.

Later that year, splattered with flour and water, Keys tried a more complicated dish—fried chicken. "I really messed it up," he now recalls.

Three Golfers Share The Lead In Doral Open

MIAMI (AP) — Tommie Aaron, winless on the tour but always a contender, fired a four-under-par 68 and Dan Sikes and Tom Shaw both shot 70s to share the second-round lead Friday with nine-under-par 135s in the $150,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament.

Aaron, playing the back nine first, fashioned an eagle 3 on the 533-yard, par 5 first hole of the wind-swept 7,028 yards par 72 Doral Country Club course when he hit his No. 4 wood second shot 20 feet from the pin and holed out.

Aaron, 32, who plays out of Calloway Gardens, Ga., has a 67 in the first round.

The wind began to whip the plush course, which is laced with water hazards, late in the day, but did not bother Shaw and Sikes, who were among the early finishers in this first stop on pro golf's rich Florida circuit.

"I hit the greens but the ball just didn't go in," said Shaw, an exuberant 26-year-old looking for his first tour victory.

Sikes, 38-year-old Florida attorney and a veteran on the tour, was distressed about his scrambling play and headed for the practice tee.

Defending champion Gardner Dickinson, who fired a 70 in the opening round, shot a 71 for the second 18 and a 36-hole total of 141 to easily qualify for the final 36 holes.

Arnold Palmer, who has never won at Doral, fired a 69 for a 36-hole total of 137.

Palmer is looking for his first tour victory since the Kemper Open last September.

Jack Nicklaus came in at 143, Sam Snead at even par 144 and Tom Weiskopf, runner-up here last year, had a 36-hole total of 71-69—140.

Hirsch Accepts Wisconsin Post

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Elroy "Crazy Legs" Hirsch, Los Angeles Rams executive and former star receiver, accepted the job as athletic director at the University of Wisconsin Friday night.

Hirsch announced he has accepted a five-year contract with a salary reported to be about $30,000 a year.

The announcement came just before the annual Founder's Day Dinner of the Wisconsin Alumni of Milwaukee.

Hirsch, who left what he called a lifetime job as assistant to Rams' President Daniel Reeves, succeeds the late Ivan B. Williamson who was ousted Jan. 10.

Williamson died Feb. 19, of head injuries suffered in a fall at his home.

laughing. "It was burned black on one side, half-done on the other and raw in the middle. I couldn't get anybody to touch it."

Years have passed and Brady Keys, now 31, after eight seasons in the National Football League, is still trying to sell his fried chicken. He is, it can be reported, succeeding admirably.

By the end of 1969, in fact, Keys expects between 50 and 100 fast-service restaurants to be selling his chicken with his idea: All-Pro Chicken, Inc.

Joe Namath and Cassius Clay have their hamburger joints, but Keys says his operation is different.

"What makes it different," he says, "is that it's the first franchise operation to be created by a black American, through the organization is fully integrated."

Keys' wheel is rolling. Based in Pittsburgh, All-Pro Chicken is worth more than $2 million. There are nine franchises and eight being constructed. Keys expects 200 by 1971.

Around the NFL last year, they called Brady Keys the chicken baron. They may not have a chance this year.

"I don't know if I'm going to play any more, I'm so involved in All-Pro," he says. Traded to St. Louis last year, Keys was sold to New Orleans at the end of the 1968 season.

"It would take an awful lot to make me play football again," he said. "Every guy plays to get into the position that I'm in. Why should I play any more?"

"Glory? I've got three scrapbooks at home. I read those when I need some glory. Right now, chicken means more to me than football. I'm grateful to football for what it's done for me, I've enjoyed it, but... anyway, in this business, I can come and go as I please. I don't have to get killed."

Keys' involvement in All-Pro Chicken, in fact, caused a slight disagreement between him and the Cardinals, he said. He doesn't like to talk about the details.

Anyway, he says, Brady Keys is a chicken man now.

"Our chicken is terrific," he says. "It's cooked different—a recipe my mother, mother-in-law and I worked out."

"I guess you could say it's Texas-oriented."

Webster's Free Throw Decides 65-64 Tiger Win

CARROLLTON — Roger Webster hit a free throw with :09 seconds remaining in the game to break a tie and let Beardstown nip Carrollton Friday night, 65-64.

Webster was the high scorer for the Tigers with 26 points while Mark Frech hit 17 for the Hawks. Carrollton led in shooting hitting 25 of 47 for 53 per cent and Beardstown hit 29 of 59 for 49 per cent. Carrollton also outrebounded the opposition 29-26. Carrollton also had 13 turnovers to Beardstown's ten.

Ten Cardinals Still Unsigned

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — General Manager Bing Devine of the National League champion St. Louis Cardinals Friday invited second baseman Julian Javier to fly from his home in the Dominican Republic to talk contract.

With only a week before the first exhibition game, ten established Cardinals were still unsigned.

"Hoolie and I are close enough that I asked him to come in and talk rather than to send someone down there as we did a year ago," Devine said.

Javier will arrive Tuesday, apparently seeking about $50,000. He got about $45,000 a year ago before his batting average dropped 21 points to .260.

Earlier Friday, first baseman Orlando Cepeda, reached terms reportedly for the same $80,000 received last year. He said he would be in St. Petersburg in time to work out Tuesday. Rookie infielder Steve Huntz also came to terms Friday.

Alcindor AP Player Of The Year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a thoughtful Lew Alcindor of UCLA who learned Friday he had been named the 1969 college basketball player of the year in the annual poll conducted by The Associated Press.

Alcindor and his Bruin teammates boarded a plane soon after for Pacific-8 Conference games at Stanford and California this weekend.

"In a way," said Alcindor, "I'm surprised as I am not thinking about individual honors at this time."

"This or any other award won't mean too much unless the team wins the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship again."

"However," Alcindor concluded, "it is a great honor to win this top award for the second time here at UCLA. I'm very thankful and proud."

The 7-foot-1½ star, a three-time All-American, captured the award by a landslide of votes. He polled 226 votes in balloting conducted as a separate category with that for the AP All-American team. Some of the 339 who voted for the All-American team did not vote for the Player of the Year.

Nearest to Alcindor was Pistol Pete Maravich of Louisiana State University, the nation's leading scorer. He polled 65 votes.

Alcindor, rounding out his senior year at UCLA, won the honor in 1967 as a sophomore. Last year Alcindor was beaten out by Elvin Hayes of Houston.

Burke Disputes Robinson Views

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Mike Burke, president of the New York Yankees, disputes a contention by star outfielder Frank Robinson that Negroes have no chance of being major league managers.

"I don't know where Robinson gets off talking like that," Burke said in an interview.

The Yankees' top official was here Thursday for a Civic Club luncheon.

Robinson, the Baltimore Orioles' rightfielder and a Negro, had said he doubted Negroes had a chance at being managers strictly because of their race.

He included Elston Howard, the Yankees' coach, in that list.

But Burke denied this strongly, saying:

"The truth is we brought Ellie back from the Boston Red Sox because he had such outstanding qualifications for a managerial position. Matter of fact, we even presented him two options."

"We told him we would make him a manager of one of four farm teams or else he could stay with the Yankees as a first base coach."

"We wanted him to take the managerial job, but he preferred to remain as coach. It was his feeling that he could learn more about managing this way."

Women are expected to comprise 36 per cent of all workers by 1975, according to Bureau of Labor Statistics forecasts.

Clendenon
Announces
Retirement

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Don Clendenon, veteran first baseman involved in a controversial trade in which he went to the Houston Astros and Rusty Staub went to the new Montreal team, announced Friday he is retiring from baseball.

Clendenon, 33, has been named vice president with Scripto, Inc., an Atlanta firm for which he has worked three years in the off season.

Clendenon said he did not know how his retirement would effect the trade made last winter between Houston and Montreal.

Houston swapped Staub, the Astro's most popular player, to Montreal for Clendenon and Jesus Alou. Clendenon had been with the Pittsburgh Pirates seven seasons before he was sent to Montreal last fall in the expansion draft along with Alou.

Clendenon, who had a lifetime batting average of .283, although it slipped to .287 last year, said he is going into business in an attempt to help Negro players land jobs after their careers end.

Clendenon, who has lived in Atlanta several years, will be in charge of public relations and an assistant to the president of the pen company.

Clendenon said his trade to Houston did not affect his decision.

UI Students Build 'Odd' Chess Sets

URBANA, Ill. — Twenty-two chess sets designed and built by juniors and seniors at the University of Illinois are being displayed to the public at an Urbana retail store.

The chess sets—each of which is valued by the students at $125 to $400—are done in glass, aluminum, brass, bronze, wood, plastic and various combinations. Each set also has its own board which complements, and often is essential to, the chess pieces.

The sets were developed in the materials and processes course taught by Prof. Leonard Price of the art department's industrial design faculty. The students were told to design the pieces and board so that the sets would be suitable to mass reproduction. It was necessary to use simple machine operations. Price instructed them.

The results were some very elaborate chessmen and boards. A number of the sets are self-storing, others allow the pieces to be locked in place. One chess board is vertical and meant to be hung on a wall. Several boards are lighted from beneath and at least two boards are collapsible and can be folded into a small area for easy storage.

Most of the chessmen designs vary widely from the traditional shape and style of chess pieces. A few are distinguished only by color; some others look alike except for their differing heights.

Prof. Price made one rule about the practicality of the sets, however—the student had to demonstrate that a game could be played with his set before he could get a passing grade.

Religion In The News

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Perhaps you've met Paul Stevens.

It may have been in New York or Washington, Hong Kong or Saigon. Maybe it was Moscow, or London, or Paris or Bangkok. Jerusalem? Possibly.

But it probably wasn't Fort Worth, although his home is here.

Dr. Paul M. Stevens, 51, is director of the Radio and Television Commission of the 11 million-member Southern Baptist Convention, the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

As such, he travels the world, overseeing personally all network television productions for Southern Baptists, plus a variety of other duties.

Dr. Stevens is handsome, articulate and a stylish dresser, a man always on the move.

A graduate of Baylor University at Waco, Tex., he attended theological seminaries in Louisville and Fort Worth, served three years as an Air Force combat chaplain and pastored several churches.

He is now in his 15th year as director of the Radio and Television Commission, headquartered here in a glittering stone and tinted glass structure overlooking the city's fashionable West Side.

With a $1.5-million budget and 75 staff members, the commission is charged with electronically spreading the religious word, not necessarily the Baptist word, around the globe.

The forerunner of the commission was founded on a shoestring in 1938. It assumed its present name in 1954 and a year later shifted from Atlanta, Ga., to Fort Worth.

The commission now is producing 28 radio and television programs heard weekly by an audience estimated at 50 million.

Four programs in Spanish and one each in Russian, Portuguese, Italian, Chinese and Navajo are heard in 40 countries over 425 language stations.

Working with the three major networks—NBC, ABC and CBS—the commission has undertaken some ambitious tasks.

These include color television documentaries such as "Walk Beside Me," dealing with the apostle Paul's missionary journeys, and "The Inheritance," an archeological trek through Old Testament times.

One of the most successful, and expensive ventures has been "Jot," a series of 4½-minute color cartoons designed for children aged 4 to 10.

The commission is financed totally by Southern Baptists, and its radio and television productions are offered on tape and film to stations for public service broadcasting.

"We don't expect over the air to necessarily convert people," explained the Rev. Ed Shipman, the commission's promotion director.

"We are trying to create a spiritual climate with radio and television that will make people receptive to the Christian message. We also are trying to make a genuine Christian contribution to the moral and spiritual life of America."

Started Decorating With Doll House Art

By ARLEEN ABRAHAM, Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Who says dolls and doll houses are only playthings for little girls?

By her own admission, interior designer Melanie Kahane played with dolls "long past the so-called proper age to do so. I'm the only girl I know who at age 14 was making linens for my dolls," she says.

If she has her way, adult women will be returning to dollhouse play, often with their children as companions.

Miss Kahane, celebrated for the full-sized homes she has designed, including the New York mansion of the late Billy Rose and the official residence of the president of Princeton University, claims that her love for decorating was born in her first make-shift dollhouse: the carpet-covered back steps of her childhood home in Sioux Falls, S.D.

"Show me a woman who's scared to furnish a home," says the author of "There's a Decorator in Your Doll House," "and I'll show you a woman who's never furnished a doll house."

Although the home is one area where a woman can make her own statement, Miss Kahane claims that many women are terribly intimidated by the whole idea.

"They know the whole world is watching and they're scared so they call in a decorator."

This is where the doll house comes in. A doll house can give a woman the freedom to experiment, particularly for a woman who loves to experiment but who can't afford to make a mistake in her real-life home. In the scaled-to-miniature house, a woman can plan all the rooms, try out various carpetings and wall coverings, experiment with various color schemes and furniture styles without fear of the consequences.

"In short, a woman can use the doll house exactly the way a professional designer uses a model," she explains.

Since the same decorating principles apply to all homes, Miss Kahane contends that a mother who introduces her child to doll house decorating will be providing her with a valuable dose of self-confidence that will pay a bonus when the child, as an adult woman, is confronted with decorating her first real home.

"And this is one area in which both the mother and daughter can explore together," says the wife of NBC commentator Ben Gauer and mother of a grown daughter.

"This will really cement a relationship. The daughter can easily respect the mother as an authority—and both can work together to solve their problems."

Best of all if the decorating schemes don't work out—if it turns out that you really can't stand red and pink together—or that you don't like armchairs after all—you can just tear it apart and start over.

"Think of it as your own built-in hostility pad," comments Miss Kahane. "After all, it's still only a doll house."

Sherried Bananas With Ice Cream

By CECILY BROWNSTOWN
Associated Press Food Editor

Knowing cooks often use bananas for easy-to-make desserts. Skillet-cooked, broiled or baked they're great to serve "as is" or with a topping of vanilla ice cream or whipped cream.

Different parts of the country have different ways of preparing the bananas "as is."

The following recipe for Sherried Bananas comes from Georgia. The original recipe called for lots more sugar and was served as an accompaniment for pork or ham. The friend who gave us the recipe prefers a smaller amount of sugar and offers these Sherried Bananas with ice cream.

SHERRIED BANANAS
6 green-tipped bananas
1-3rd cup butter or margarine
2-3rd cup sugar
Pinch of salt

½ cup sherry (dry, medium or sweet)
1½ pints vanilla ice cream

Peel bananas and cut in half crosswise. In a 10-inch skillet, heat butter; add bananas and gently cook until lightly browned. Add sugar and salt.

When sugar dissolves and bubbles, add sherry and continue cooking about five minutes. Serve warm with ice cream.

Makes six servings.

NEGRO NAMED HANDICAPPED AMERICAN OF '68

EAST CHICAGO, Ind. (AP)—Bill Passmore visited every room on the five floors of St. Catherine's Hospital Sunday, just as for so many Sundays the past 20 years.

There was additional happiness in his voice this time, patient said. The 39-year-old Negro amputee had just been named "Handicapped American of 1968."

"It's my Sunday ritual," said Passmore, who will receive the award from President Nixon in May. "Nothing keeps me from my rounds, not even this great honor."

Passmore lost both legs after injuring his spine in a football accident when he was 15. "A handicap is only what you make it," he said.

Passmore doesn't make much of his.

After graduating from high school, he worked 11 years as a midnight-shift taxicab dispatcher so he could devote days to working with the handicapped and disadvantaged.

For the past four years he has worked full time counseling, training and placing disadvantaged youth of the neighborhood Youth Corps. He has found jobs for hundreds of them in recent months.

"Having a physical handicap actually helps with these kids," he said. "It can teach them that what counts is what you want to be in life, not what you are right now."

Passmore's wheel chair is seldom at rest. A bachelor, he is past president of the East Chicago Jaycees, sponsor of Convicts Anonymous at the state prison, vice president of the Northern Indiana Political Action Alliance and assistant su-

When two experts sit down to play together for the first time they usually discuss their defensive signals. One of the more common defensive signals is to echo (play high, then low) to show an even number of cards in a suit while if you simply play normally you are showing an odd number.

If they are high-ranking experts they usually say that they only use these signals when there is a good reason to help their partner while if they want to fool declarer they discard any way they feel like.

West opened the queen of diamonds and continued the suit. How could he possibly tell that a club shift would beat the hand while a diamond continuation would allow declarer to bring home the bacon?

South ruffed the second diamond and led his king of trumps. East took his ace and led a third diamond. South ruffed high and led a trump to dummy's 10.

South was a near-expert who considered himself a master of cunning plays. He knew that he needed four spade tricks to make his contract since he had to park one of dummy's losing clubs on his fourth spade. He decided that if he studied awhile before playing a high spade from dummy, he might cause an opponent to think that his partner held the spade ace.

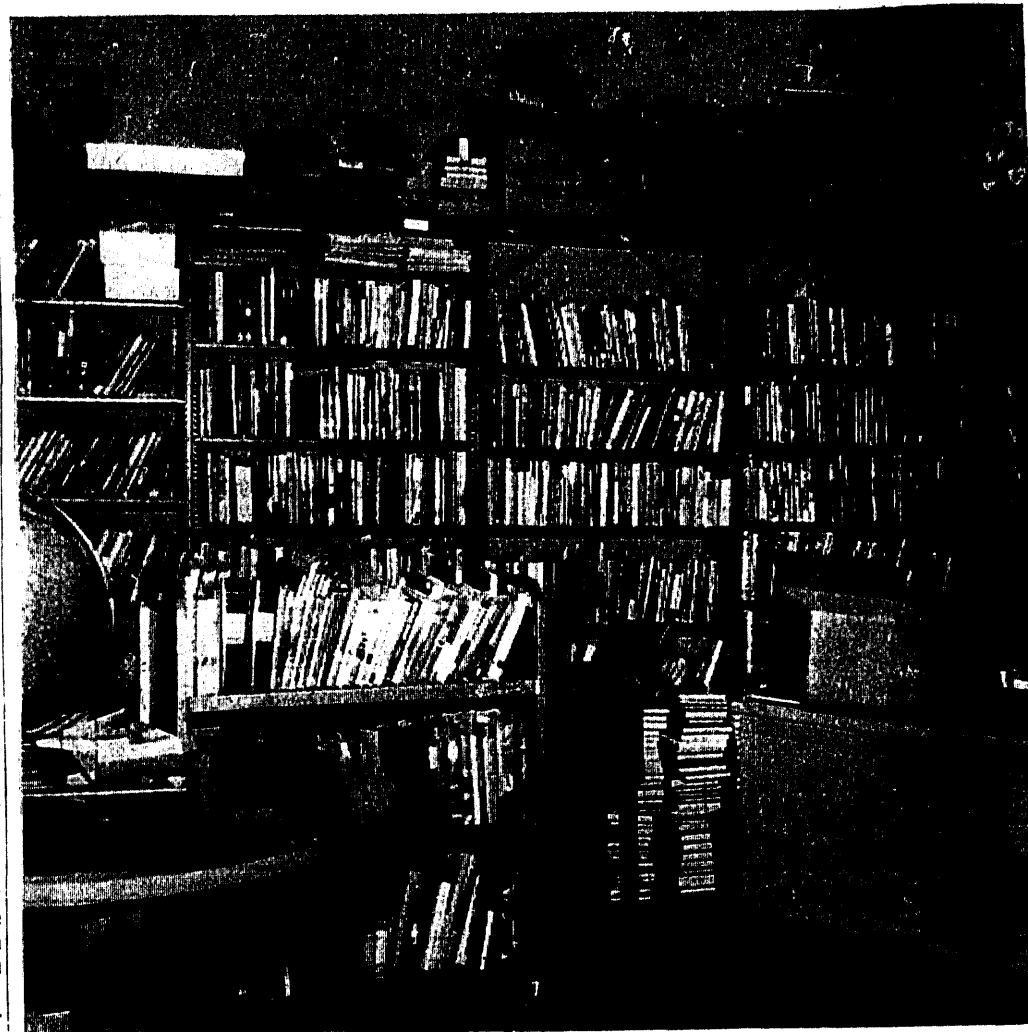

He hesitated awhile and then played dummy's king of spades. East played the three.

West was a real expert. He figured out just what was going through South's mind and played the eight of spades on that first spade lead. He echoed with the three on the second and South fell for it.

He played dummy's last spade, turned to West and remarked, "You gave yourself away when you echoed in spades." Then South played his 10 spot. "Maybe not," replied West, as he produced the jack!

STUDENTS ARE NOT the only ones who have to suffer from the lack of adequate space in the School District 117 facilities. The cataloging room at the Jonathan Turner Junior High school (shown above) is one example of the cramped working spaces available to many of the teaching and administrative personnel in the district. Included in the $4.25 million bond issue proposal plans is the construction of an educational media center at Turner junior high, and the conversion of the present library to additional teaching stations.

The Weeders' Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Winter, when trees are dormant, is an excellent time for pruning. Make the cuts clean and even, at a joint. If you leave a stump or lip, a callus won't form readily over the wound. Instead the wound will remain open, subject to infection.

Try not to rip the bark when severing large limbs. You can prevent this by undercutting a third or a quarter of the way through the bottom of the limb, then cutting from the top. In cutting off large limbs, trim smaller sprouts from this first or cut the big one in sections to reduce the weight. This will lessen bark ripping or splintering.

As a rule of thumb, when a limb with a diameter larger than 1 1/4 inches is cut off, dress the wound with pine tar or an asphalt preparation to facilitate healing.

Trees that are "bleeders" should not be pruned during the dormant season. Such trees, including maples and birches, exude considerable sap at that time and should be trimmed in summer.

For your own security, use a safety rope if you climb high in a tree. If you use a chain saw, use twice as much oil in winter and take smaller chips to lessen wear on the equipment.

Begin War in Winter
Winter also is a good time to begin the war on insects and diseases that damage shade and fruit trees.

Dormant spraying will kill insect egg masses and check diseases. You will find egg masses on the underside of twigs, around buds and leaf scars, and in cracks and crevices of bark.

"The early-spring problem of tree damage caused by scale insects, cankerworms, aphids, gypsy moths, tent caterpillars and brown-tail moths, generally may be averted by spraying during the nesting period," says tree expert Robert A. Bartlett.

Dormant spray composed of miscible oils can be applied to most shade trees. However, sugar maple, beech, butternut, black walnut, Japanese maple and some evergreens cannot accept this spray.

Spray when the temperature is between 40 and 65 degrees. Above or below this temperature range, the oils can cause damage. Do not spray on cloudy, damp days, since oil does not dry rapidly.

Apply the oil lightly but thoroughly to assure complete coverage of bark and underside of twigs. Do not overspray.

Favorite tree haunts of wintering scale insects and insect eggs include apple, ash, catalpa, cherry, elm, hackberry, lilac, linden, Norway maple, soft maple, mountain ash, oak, plum, poplar, privet, sycamore, tulip and willow.

RIGHT NAME

AHMEDABAD, India (AP) — A tiny bird known as the Babler is a friend of India's military men posted in desert areas along the Pakistan border. A member of the State Assembly said soldiers told him the birds get excited and "babble" any time there is troop movement on the other side of the border.

Attribute Death Of Barrow Man To Snowstorm

At least one death was attributed to a six-inch snow fall that slowed traffic and business in the Jacksonville area Friday morning.

Lee Roy Cloninger, 67-year-old Barrow resident, was pronounced dead at his home at 3:30 p.m. Friday. Greene County Coroner William H. Wolfe said Cloninger collapsed and died of an apparent heart attack minutes after abandoning an attempt to clear his driveway of snow.

The state Weather Bureau gives only a 20 per cent chance for more precipitation in the area during the weekend. A sunny Sunday is expected to clear the remainder of the worst storm this winter.

City, county and state police were busy running from one emergency to another, none of which were serious.

Jersey Charges 4 With Theft At Lumber Firm

JERSEYVILLE — Four residents of the Jerseyville and Jersey county locality are facing charges involving them in the burglary and larceny committed at the Jersey Lumber Company in this city the night of February 15th.

Chief of Police Herman H. Blackorby of Jerseyville arrested Clarence Davis, 52-year-old Jerseyville resident, the past week for selling two guns and a power saw identified as items allegedly stolen in the burglary at the Jersey Lumber Company the night of February 15th.

Davis was arraigned Monday in the Jersey County Circuit Court before Judge Howard Lee White and found at that time to be an indigent person.

Attorney Norbert Goetten was appointed by the court to defend Davis and the case was continued until Tuesday. Davis was held for further investigation by the Jersey County Grand Jury and bound over to await the action of that body following the hearing Tuesday. Appearance bond was fixed in the sum of five thousand dollars. In default of the required bail, Davis was committed to the county jail.

Larry Eden, 21, of Jerseyville, route 2 and a sixteen-year-old Jersey county youth are also facing charges of burglary and theft arising out of the same break-in at the Jersey Lumber Company. A petition was also filed under the Illinois Juvenile Act involving a fourteen-year-old boy in the same affair. Eden and the sixteen-year-old youth were arraigned in court and were granted a continuance upon motion to permit them to consult with their attorneys. They were released on bond for further examination.

Attorney Claude Davis was appointed as counsel to represent the fourteen-year-old boy. A continuance was granted in the matter and the boy was released by the court to the custody of his parents.

Report Denies Revenue Study Conclusions

CHICAGO (AP) — A minority report being circulated among members of the Governor's Revenue Study Committee dissents from proposals made by the majority Friday.

Ned Freeman, representing the Illinois Federation of Teachers, distributed the report for signatures of others who might agree with him.

In it, he says the committee proposed "to place a flat-rate income tax—regressive in itself—atop the staggering burden of regressive and unfair taxes under which citizens of modest and moderate circumstances are already suffering."

He says also that the committee's recommendation to broaden the sales tax also would bring an "an increased tax burden to again fall heaviest on those with the least ability to pay."

He charged that the committee adopted the "major provisions of the Chamber of Commerce's tax program" and attacked the makeup of the committee as being overly representative of business interests.

Freeman argued that any income tax bills in the legislature "be accompanied by bills to abolish the sales tax and real estate and personal property taxes."

He also recommended that any income tax be progressive, with rates based upon ability to pay, in the way the federal income tax is.

The committee lacks in its membership, Freeman said, representatives of those "who have competence in how the present taxation system in Illinois burdens unjustly the majority of our citizens."

These, he said, include "those taxpayers of modest circumstances—the aged, the poor, the store clerks, those struggling to raise a family, seasonal workers, the family farmers, and many of the so-called 'middle class' white collar workers."

A statement presenting the views of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association was entered as part of the record by the association's representative, Jack Goodman.

This statement said the association has for more than 50 years opposed imposition of a state income tax and attributed the state's "extraordinary industrial expansion" to the absence of such tax.

The association reluctantly concurs in the committee's income tax recommendation "in view of the unprecedented critical financial condition of the state," Goodman said.

The association holds, he said, that a portion of any additional revenue needed be raised through an increase in the income tax rate. He also called for abolition of the personal property tax.

100 Volunteers On Call For Cass Rescue Team

By Virgil Reither
BEARDSTOWN — The prolonged wail of the fire siren, night or day, dinner time, shower time, club time or what have you, is a direct command to members of the Beardstown Rescue Squad to make tracks—and fast—for the city hall!

It is an order. It means action. It is the signal for an emergency, indicating the possibility of a drowning, a highway crash, a lost child or any one of a hundred other kinds of human problems requiring assistance from these devoted, dedicated volunteers who work without pay or promise of any reward to help their fellows in distress.

Jack Wetherell, a charter member of the Rescue Squad, says there are more than 100 names on the list of members, although only a small percentage of these generally answer the first alarm.

Known far and wide for efficiency and being ready to help, the local squad is a kind of do it yourself outfit, and its members are just now completing a new project, fitting a converted one-ton Chevrolet into a second Rescue Squad vehicle.

Originally this outfit had been utilized as a traveling tire shop, but Wetherell and his helpers have built in a series of cabinets and other conveniences which now include a big generator, lights, special saw, cutting tools, first aid kits, special clothing, ropes, chains, resuscitator, pump breathing apparatus, blankets, and about any other piece of equipment liable to be needed on the highway, in the timber, on the river—you name it.

The vehicle has been newly painted a gleaming white and is a companion for the red Cadillac ambulance secured several years ago.

The ambulance also is equipped with much of the paraphernalia used in rescue efforts, and in addition has cots on which four persons could be transported at the same time—two cots would be suspended from the roof.

The Rescue Unit gets lots of calls. Two weeks ago the local boys took their river equipment into Pike county where the body of a man who fell into the river was being sought. The employer of the victim recently sent the

School Bond Issue Facts

Q. Will the new elementary school and the new junior high school have swimming pools to be financed from this bond referendum?

A. The current bond issue proposal does not include funds for construction of swimming pools in either the new elementary school or the new junior high school. However, the new junior high school will be planned so that a swimming pool could be constructed at a future date without duplication of locker rooms and shower facilities.

Q. Where are the improvements planned for the senior high school going? Are they going to go to the old David Prince building or the better senior high school section? Will the cost of remodeling the senior high school be lost in the near future simply because a new building will be needed? Is it needed if the ninth grade will be assigned to the junior high schools?

A. Improvements for the high school are planned so that this building will be more functional for a modern secondary school program for at least the next five to ten years. These improvements do not include major construction or additions to the plant. They do include expansion of the library into a modern instructional media center, development of study hall and auditorium into spaces for large group and small group instruction, relocation of the guidance offices from the David Prince building into the main academic building, and conversion of the present cafeteria into a more attractive student commons area through realignment of space, redecoration, and refurbishing. Two hundred thousand dollars of the proposed bond issue is being budgeted for these improvements. If the high school building is used for several more years, the cost per year to make the building function well for an up to date program is quite reasonable.

These improvements are necessary even with the removal from the senior high school level of the ninth grade class.

Q. I understand that an offer has been made to the First Baptist Church for the property on West State Street near the high school. What is the purpose of this?

A. The Board of Education offer for this property, which might have been used for administrative offices and parking area, has been withdrawn.

Q. Only Communists just tell one side of the story. How come your crummy paper only tells one side? Are you afraid to tell the whole truth?

A. The Journal-Courier has attempted to present information on all viewpoints pertaining to the bond issue through its news columns, communications to the editor, and advertisements.

Q. Is it true that when this bond referendum is passed school will begin at 8:00 a.m. and not dismiss until 4:00 p.m.?

A. Changes in schedule of classes at the various schools is not contingent on passage or failure of the current bond proposal.

Q. When will the new elementary school be built? What is the construction timetable?

A. It is expected that construction of the new buildings would take place during the two year period following the referendum. This would mean that the new buildings would be completed in the spring of 1971 and would be ready for occupancy in September 1971. The additions and improvements to Jonathan Turner and the senior high school could be completed by September, 1970.

Q. Why can't they buy the land on North Church and West State Street where that old church used to be and add it to the high school?

A. The proposed program calls for the ninth graders of the school district to be assigned to the junior high schools and for some renovation that does not involve new construction within the existing high school plant. This decision was reached after careful study and full consideration of many alternatives as being the solution best for the Jacksonville public schools at this time and one that makes the construction dollars go as far as possible and benefit as many children as possible.

Q. Approximately how many new teachers will be needed for the new schools and where will the money come for their salaries?

A. As enrollments increase regardless of whether or not the new schools are built. Of course, there will be some additional costs to the educational program to cover the expense of utilities, administration, and related expenses in a new building. The money for these expenses will need to come from state aid, federal

Winchester Ag Shop Burns Early Friday; Scott Schools Close

Scott County schools in Winchester, Alsey and Manchester were closed Friday following a fire of undetermined origin at the agricultural shop located next to the high school at Winchester.

The fire was discovered by a bus driver shortly after 7 a.m. Friday and the Winchester Volunteer Department responded with men and equipment.

They battled flames and smoke more than two hours before bringing the blaze under control.

The ag shop is located a short distance from the high school, southwest of the Winchester square. The flames started in the shop portion of the building, but quickly spread to the adjoining classroom portion.

The interior of the building was extensively damaged by fire, although the basic structure was thought to be salvageable upon first inspection after the fire.

The loss is covered by insurance according to officials of the board of education.

Some smoke damage resulted to the high school itself, but was not considered extensive.

There was no immediate damage estimate made. The loss will range into the thousands of dollars, however.

Schools will open as usual Monday, according to school authorities.

School officials were busy Friday salvaging whatever they could and making arrangements to hold classes in an alternate location when school resumes.

Andrew Sauer, president of the board of education, said, "The fire hit us at a bad time, but we will simply have to improvise the program for the rest of the year. I can assure you we will rebuild it just as soon as possible. We expect the insurance adjusters to arrive sometime Monday and the building will be inspected for structural damage and other defects. The materials inside will also have to be replaced.

"Because of the heavy smoke involved, it would have been impossible to have school Friday in the high school, especially the west wing, but school will resume Monday. Most of the school officials will be busy over the weekend preparing for the Monday opening."
